CHECKMASTER

There's no better or more sensible way for Yale men to pay bills and keep track of money spent. Check-books are free. CheckMaster checks look like any other. No minimum balance is required.

CheckMaster is one good reason more Yale men use The Tradesmens than use any other bank.

To the Class of 1963:

Yale is a place of ideas, old and new. Through your curricular work you will encounter the most important of these during your years at Yale. Simultaneously you will have the opportunity to supplement this experience by careful and considered participation in some of the many extra-curricular groups and activities that are also a part of Yale.

In the extra-curricular field an activity of any sort must answer at least one question in the affirmative before it can claim a place on the campus: "May it claim a legitimate place within an academic community?" Similarly the individual should answer two questions in the affirmative before giving serious consideration to his participation in any extra-curricular activity. "Am I contributing to my own overall educational objectives and plan through this means?" "Am I engaging in this activity for its own inherent value and pleasure, and not with the artificial goal of achieving prestige?"

This emphasis serves the purpose of keeping Yale's many student activities in proper perspective, i.e. extra. No one doubts the valuable contribution that debating, dramatics, singing, journalism, broadcasting, and many others may make to undergraduate education if they are pursued in addition to the primary job of academic progress, and especially if every such activity is consciously made a means of contributing to that educational process of which lectures, library, and laboratory form the basic core. Each year a few seem to forget this and make the extra-curricular an end unto itself. Inevitably they suffer, or at least fail to profit.

If all the members of 1963 will utilize extra-curricular ideas and activities in this spirit, then both they and Yale will prosper.

CAVEAT EMPTOR...

As any classics scholar will tell you, the phrase above means: LET THE BUYER BEWARE. And it's good advice to men moving on to the Old Campus. You'll be asked to buy everything from a three-piece bedroom suite to a lifetime subscription to PIT AND QUARRY. And while we're giving out advice, here's a tip on how to handle your finances in a businesslike way . . . a way that'll give you a complete, accurate record of every major college expense . . .

A "CONVENIENCE" CHECKING ACCOUNT AT THE TRUST COMPANY

The Associated Student Agencies at Yale are operated by student Managers under the direct control of Yale University. To be eligible for the position of a Manager, a student must have a genuine need of money for his education and support and must keep a scholastic standing acceptable to the University. An Agency must provide a continuity of Managers by competition, at the Freshman, Sophomore, or Junior level, for eligible students to prove their fitness to become Managers. The number of Managers depends upon the size of the individual Agency. A large Agency might have a Sophomore, Junior and Senior Managers and a small Agency only a Senior Manager.

The governing body of the Associated Student Agencies is a Council made up of representatives from various branches of the University including the Council of (Residential College) Masters, the Treasurer's Office, the University's Service Bureau, Legal Council, Dean of Freshmen, Personnel Department, Comptroller of the University under Chairman Ralph C. Burr, Financial Aids Committee. This Council through a Supervisor, Mr. Murray Murdoch, appointed by the University, controls the administration and policy of the Associate Student Agencies. Any suggested enterprise must have the approval of the Council before it can be accepted as an Agency on the Yale Campus. The amount of remuneration a student Manager receives must also have the approval of the Council.

An Agency must deposit all money received with the Treasurer of Yale University and give a numbered receipt to the individual student from whom the money was received. These receipt books are strictly controlled and audited by the University Auditor. All purchases are made on Yale University or Associated Student Agencies Purchase Orders. All bills must be sent in duplicate to the Supervisor of the Associated Student Agencies and after his approval, are paid by Yale University.

All employees, salesmen, competitors and managers are paid through the Yale University Payroll Department. All student earnings are reported to the Scholarship Department. All taxes, etc., are reported and paid by Yale University. Each Agency must keep a set of records acceptable to the Supervisor and a University Auditor. A complete audit of the Associated Student Agencies book is made yearly and submitted to the Council. Money to operate the Associated Student Agencies and to pay the University for the services rendered the Agencies, is collected by assessment based on the gross business and surplus of each Agency.

The major Agencies were established in the 1920-30 period. Initial capital for these ventures was obtained by Mr. Crawford's personal solicitation among certain of his Yale classmates, which produced funds of nearly $5,000, loaned to the earlier Agencies and amortized long since out of their respective earnings. In 1923, the Associated Student Agencies were established, bringing all these operations under general supervision and (somewhat later) under a uniform managerial contract.

Macy's tells you everything .

you need to know about

your Diamond purchase

Chances are you don't buy diamonds every day of the week. It's an important purchase, unfortunately so many times spoiled by the "blind article" fear. Unless you are a diamond expert, you have no way of judging quality and value. You take another's word and hope for the best.

Do then as thousands have done — buy that treasured diamond at Macy's where the diamond was taken out of the sphere of mystery many years ago and blind buying does not exist.

We tell you all there is to know about your diamond solitaire and its four value determining factors — color, degree of perfection, cut and weight. Macy's is a multi-million dollar concern you can trust, where you can buy with confidence.

Macy's diamonds are sold day in and day out at our lowest possible prices. You always get outstanding value . . . that's one of the reasons why Macy's is one of the largest single diamond outlets in the world.

In Macy's diamond brokerage service we operate as qualified diamond brokers for private individuals, dealers and estates. Our fee is nominal — as low as 10% of the price determined by us and paid by the owner.

Come in and look us over more often. And remember — our day in and day out policy of outstanding values applies equally to diamonds, watches and gold jewelry, regardless of what and when you buy.

BUY NOW, PAY AS YOU ENJOY YOUR DIAMONDS . . . USE MACY'S NEW C-T PLAN.

Diamonds, Macy's Street Floor, Herald Square.
Also at Macy's Parkchester, Jamaica, Flatbush,
White Plains and Roosevelt Field, L. I.

VAULT-SAFE VANS

Household goods are as safely stowed as in a vault in our modern vans. Moreover, your most intimate home furnishings are as sanitarly cared for, as though they were still in your own rooms. Your articles are almost magically picked-up and set-down, with no care on your mind, when we Move or Store your effects!
